DEATH CALLS Dr. N. D. STEELE

Well-known Lomond medical man died in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan hospital last Friday. The late Dr. Steele came to Lomond in 1921 and carried on his practice in Lomond until his health failed him and he retired last fall.

Deceased is survived by his widow and two daughters.

ENTOMOLOGIST MAKES INSPECTION

Mr. Seaman of the Experimental farm Lethbridge made a survey of some of the farm lands in the district the first of the week for cutworms. In his check-up considerable quantities were found and every means possible should be taken to offset damage that is sure to come if the farmers do not take every means possible to control the pests.

Mr. Seaman recommends as a possible way to destroy the pests is to cultivate and leave the field for about ten days.

There are no indications of how grasshoppers eggs came through the winter. Entomologists maintain that there is a danger of wider infestation of grasshoppers than last year in Alberta, but the danger will not be as intensified. It is anticipated, however, that extensive damage is likely from cutworms

Melvin Ashmore spent the Easter holidays visiting at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Daub, of Mossleigh.

Mr. Mark Peel, who has spent the past year with relatives at the Coast and in the Interior of British Columbia, arrived Sunday night to visit his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Marshall, and family.

An enjoyable program of games and dancing concluded with the singing of "For They are Jolly Good-Fellows."

Hikers Prepare for Rockies' Sky-Line Trails

Invading the domain of the mountain goats, adventure-loving Canadians and Americans will tramp the Sky-Line Trail in the Yoho Valley district of the Canadian Rockies this summer from August 5 to 8. The Sky-Line Trail Hikers of the Canadian Rockies have a unique organization. It is open to the world at large. The only qualifications are a love of beauty, a sturdy pair of boots, and the will to leave the main roads for the undiscovered charms of the back country.

Indications are that a gay band of adventurers will invade the beautiful Yoho Valley this summer from Banff Springs Hotel, Chateau Lake Louise and the several attractive Canadian Pacific chateau-bungalow camps in the Canadian Rockies. From one central camp spectacularly situated half way between Yoho Lodge and Emerald Lake north of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the hikers will explore along the high line, visit the fossil beds on the slopes of Mount Burgess, inspect the snow mountain peaks of the glacier and look flowers in the high-altitude alpine meadows of Little Yoho Valley. The district has much to offer. The hikers will have opportunities to fish for fighting mountain trout, to hunt big game with camera, to get away from the ordinary humdrum for four glorious days of mountain life. This type of holiday, so unusual and yet so inexpensive because of the organization formed by the hiking enthusiasts, is attracting more people every year. The secretary-treasurer, J. Murray Gibson, Windsor Station, Montreal, reports that the number of inquiries already received indicates that there will be a record turnout of old and new members this year. The picture layout shows highlights of a typical hike.

An Industry To Nurture

At a time when Western Canada is looking around for more sources of revenue to boost dwindling governmental treasures and to augment the supply of coin for private and corporate purses, it might be appropriate to give some serious consideration to the advisability of devising methods to develop tourist trade to a greater extent than has been achieved to date.

Insofar as increased tourist trade has an effect on governmental revenues is concerned it might be argued that comparatively little of the money brought into the country by tourist visitors from south of the international boundary is contributed directly to the provincial governments. This is true, of course, but it is also true that the money expended by tourists in the purchase of commodities and services while they are here makes it easier for the residents of the country to pay taxes and imports levied by all classes of governments, federal, provincial and municipal, and to the extent that it does so, assists in boosting the revenues of these governments. So that not only those who have commodities and services to sell to tourists benefit by the money that they spend in the country, but it is advantageous to all the taxpayers.

Beneficial To The East

Taking the country as a whole recently released figures show that Canada benefits very substantially by tourist traffic and moreover these figures show that tourist trade ranks high in the nation's industries, even after due allowance has been made for the contra expenditure of Canadian visitors to the United States.

A preliminary estimate made by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows that the total expenditure of foreign tourists in Canada in 1937 was approximately $285,000,000, while the total expenditures of Canadian tourists in other countries was approximately $123,000,000. The corresponding estimates for 1936 were $240,000,000 and $137,000,000 respectively.

These figures not only show that the tourist traffic, both inward and outward bound, is growing, but that a very substantial trade balance in favor of this country is depicted—a balance of $152,000,000 in 1937 as compared with $142,000,000 the preceding year.

When these figures are compared with the total revenue derived from wheat in recent years they are quite impressive, but unfortunately it is easily demonstrated that comparatively little of the tourist harvest is reaped in the prairie provinces, perhaps not as much as might be if greater efforts were made to attract more visitors with money to spend some leisure time in Western Canada.

Beneficial To The Taxpayers

There are reasons why the east enjoys a tremendous percentage of this comparatively new found source of wealth. They are to be found in greater concentrations of population on both sides of the international border, accessibility and the existence of first class highways. Some of these advantages cannot be expected to accrue to the west immediately, but there is reason to believe that the west could derive a larger share of the benefit if more attention were paid to improvements in the highways system in the prairie provinces, in addition to completion of the trans-Canada highway and its maintenance in a state of high efficiency.

An improved highway system is a project which might well receive attention as an appropriate form of unemployed works to a greater extent than it has hitherto. Such work would not only be of benefit to the government's fiscal year, but it would have this merit that, if properly conceived and economically carried out, it would ensure some return to the taxpayers of the country, in direct form to some and in indirect form to the others.

There is much of charm in the Western Canadian scene and to many of our neighbors to the south the northern and western parts of Canada have a romantic allure which should draw much tourist traffic if adequate highway facilities made travel more certain and more easy and made these charms more readily accessible.

Moreover the completion of a first class highway across Canada with suitable interlink lines should not only have the effect of drawing more American tourists to the prairie provinces but should also divert more Eastern Canadian tourists to the west.

A Worthwhile Effort

The past few years of agricultural depression have not only taught westerners the necessity for greater diversification of agriculture but that also the west needs more industries hence agriculture if it is to become the life of this section of Canada is to become more stable. Some of these industries are evolving, some with rapidity and some more slowly, as for example the petroleum industry, but the tourist trade is another which appears to be worthy of cultivation to a material degree.

Increased Collections

Larger Revenue Shown At Close Of Government's Fiscal Year

Finance Minister Dunning closed his books March 31, at the close of the government's fiscal year, with substantial increases from the income tax and customs and excise collections. It has been shown by the department of national revenue.

Net collections from customs duties, excise taxes and excise duties totalled $310,016,083, an increase of $44,701,517 over the previous 12-month period.

Net customs duties totalled $91,626,741, an increase of $9,643,821; excise taxes, $174,451,397, an increase of $28,852,022; and excise duties, $52,162,116, an increase of $6,191,051.

Russian Deal In Old Newspapers And Made Fortune

Aluminum Lipman who went to New York as a boy from Russia and grew up to have more interest in old newspapers than in new ones, died recently at the age of 82.

He founded the Lipman paper company that marketed waste paper of the New York newspapers. You could make more than 20 per cent. for several years he did a gross annual business of $1,600,000.

Lipman exported the over-issues of the newspapers to China, Japan, India, Java and South Africa for wrapping purposes and for partitions in bamboo houses. About 30 per cent. of the paper was sold for remanufacture as newspaper.

FLIN FLON

"The Story of Its Finding and Position Today"

By PRATT KUHN

In writing these stories of Flin Flon there are naturally many people I should have mentioned, and one particular one comes to mind. It is "Hendy"—who officially is W. R. Henderson, the postmaster of the town, and the unofficial post of the north country. Born in Leeds, Yorkshire, but migrated to Edinburgh, Scotland, at the age of 12 months, thus starting a travel career only satisfied by tripping twice around the world and going as close to the North and South Poles as comfortable.

"Hendy" panned gold in Nevada, not in California, rubber in the Malay States and copper in Manitoba. Then panning for some real fresh air he went north to Herby Lake in 1924, and became Postmaster—visited Flin Flon in 1926 and moved up at once. He acted as postmaster with the Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Co., then with the Government post office.

Now he has a lot of new up-to-date office and a fine picture of it and of "Hendy" himself who is a very fine fellow. He is a very good fellow and has grown a lot since he left Scotland. Of course he couldn't be contented with only one job so he organized the "Canadian Reg'lar Fellers Club" and then got into dog racing, going for a handsome shield, donated by—yes, you guessed it, "Hendy" himself.

Well, both the dog racing and the Reg'lar Fellers Club started in 1931. It's a top-swing which came first.

However, I feel the story of the Reg'lar Fellers Club is vitally important so that will be the "order of business"—particularly as I'm an honorary member of Flin Flon Lodge No. 1—and proud of it.

There were lots of clubs in Flin Flon doing excellent work. The Tuxis, Tair Rangers and Boy Scouts run respectively under the United, Anglican and Roman Catholic churches, but as Juvenile Justice and Police Magistrate "Hendy" wondered why there were so few members.

Equally, however, he wondered why many boys who chummed together during the day, but who belonged to different churches were not allowed to join the same club, as joined none. This pointed the need for an absolutely undiscriminatory and non-political grouping and the Reg'lar Fellers was the result.

"Hendy" had been connected with boy's work all his life, so made the ideal individual for the organizing job as it is a fact that little success is achieved in such organizations unless some individual makes it his hobby.

The name, Reg'lar Fellers, appeals to all boys because whether they're Scouts or Rangers or what not, they all want to be Reg'lar Fellers.

As soon as the new club was announced there was a flood of applications to join. During the first evening a week meetings were held with educational talks and lots of games, while in summer, baseball and other outdoor sports were indulged in. Hence—with hot coffee at the end of them—were another favorite winter sport.

Happy at the summer camp under careful supervision are the sons of Flin Flon miners.

Even the birds enjoy the summer camp of the Canadian Reg'lar Fellers. A wonderful chance for nature study.

"Hendy", the post of the north country and founder of Canadian Reg'lar Fellers, is really W. R. Henderson, postmaster.

In 1924, Lodge No. 2 opened at Cranberry Portage, Man., and in 1935 Herby Lake, Man. was visited by airplane and No. 3 Lodge formed.

The fees to the boys are kept low—25c a year—and each is given his "Obligation" and Badge. Then each summer a "Tag Day" is held by permission of the Municipal council, which receives the hearty support of all citizens.

Each winter a dog race for the junior championship of the world and the "Hendy" Shield is run under the auspices of the Reg'lar Fellers drawing crowds of thousands then a concert is given at night attended by 600 to 700, which supplies further funds to the club.

The new shield is a 24-mile run from Flin Flon to the Mainy mine and return, and the event was started after The Pax discontinued its famous Dog Derby, which was one of the classic sporting events of the world. So well are the teams matched that the race has never been won by more than a few yards and on two occasions by only a few feet. Contestants are boys and girls under 16 years of age.

Here's a very important thing about the Reg'lar Fellers management—and if you've ever been connected with such efforts to help the other fellow you'll know how vital this is—every donation received is acknowledged in the local papers and placed in the bank, while all accounts are paid by checks signed jointly by the president and the secretary.

The boys go to camp each year for two weeks and pay only $5.00, which covers everything—any extra expense being met out of the general funds. Special arrangements are made for special cases so no boys will be left out of the pleasures of camp—and you can see they are very real pleasures by the pictures accompanying this story.

As I read over this part of my story it's so much "Hendy" that I'll give you one of his poems from "Hendy's" Northern Spoons to wind up my offering this week.

DAY DREAMS The Flin, Min., 1925

I'm sitting alone in the northland
Dreaming of tropical climes Where I numbered my friends by the hundreds
And I lived through some wonderful times.

To Port Said and Aden, and Malta,
To Hong Kong, Penang and Peru.
My thoughts fly away on the ether
As I vision the boys that I knew.

There's "Mac" far away out in China
Who always met me with a smile,
And the good chance I met in Malaya
Who made life cut there worth while.

There's Bill who was my chum in Cuba,
And Archie I knew in Peru:
To have that gang once more around me.

There's little that I wouldn't do.
They're out in these tropical places.
On the shores of those tropical seas
And their systems are reeking with fever.

As they pray God to send a cool breeze.

I've seen all your palms and your tangles
I've met the moon in its wrath
You can keep them out there, and just leave me.

With those Nature here in the north Where the snow and the frost in the winter.

Are a tonic you can't buy with wealth.
And the wonderful climate in summer
Assures the great blessing of health.

I'm happy and almost contented.
But when I'm alone, there are times That my thoughts wander over the ocean.

To my pals in the tropical climes.

Losers Are Plentiful

Something Over Five Million In Grand National Sweepstakes

There were 1,774 winners in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes of the Grand National.

But wait, before you rush out to buy a ticket on the next race. There were 3,400,230 losers.

If that takes your breath away, you can get it back with the comforting thought that total receipts were $13,730,010, and that $8,007,000 was paid out in prizes.

After all, you might have won. Let's see, 1,774 into 5,492,004 goes—

Oh shucks, you do it. Decimals give us a head-ache, don't they?

But you might pin these figures up on the wall as a reminder for next time.—Vancouver Sun.

Jersey Cow Scores Another Triumph As Three-Year-Old

Come back after making a Canadian record last year as a junior two-year-old, the Jersey cow, Golden Crown Princess, has recently completed a world's record for the breed as a three-year-old of 19,073 pounds of milk, 891 pounds of fat.

She was bred and owned by Albert Quinlan, Warden, Quebec, and leads Canadian drivers for both milk and fat.

As a junior two-year-old she produced 14,650 pounds of milk and 712 pounds of fat.

Flin Flon boasts a modern up-to-date Post Office, under Postmaster W. R. Henderson.

1937 start of the Seventh Annual Dog Racing Championship of the world at Flin Flon, Manitoba.

The big thrill. "Hendy" presents the winners of 1937 race with Trophy Shield a "Junior Dog Racing Champion of the world." Bill Kelly won both 1936 and 1937 events and holds a record for the course of 48 minutes 36.4 seconds which is so fast that Shorty Russick and other famous dog men have expressed doubts whether they could beat the time.

The origin of what in England is known as the game of "The Game of the Goose" was well known as early as 1529 when Bishop Latimer preached a Christian sermon at Cambridge to his secretary even while in the bath.

WHAT HO!

RICHARD CONNELL
By Arrangement With Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

CHAPTER X

Only a channel swimmer sunk by cramps in sight of his goal feels and looks as Ernest Bingley felt and looked when the butter broke the news to him that the Wyncoops were at the door.

"Are you sure they said 'Wyncoop'?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, sir," answered Crump. "It is a name one cannot easily forget."

Ernest turned to Lady Rosa.

"I'm very sorry," he said, "but I must ask you to excuse me for a moment. Some people are here to see me."

"No. Of course not. What makes you think that?"

"You've a very readable face, you know. It's your hands, person, that's the friends from back home," said Ernest.

"If you look like that when friends come to call, I'd hate to see you face when an enemy is announced."

Rosa said, "Go along now, Ernest, and do your duty. I'll have a dance."

Ernest did not exactly sprit toward the small reception room into which Crump had herded his visitors. A man who knew his goose had been not only cooked but made into hash and goose-soup has neither wings on his heels nor a song in his heart.

He knew, as all Bear Falls knew, that the Wyncoops had long and loquacious tales of going abroad, she to visit Stratford-on-Avon and the Louvre, he to inspect French sausage factories and the Moulin Rouge.

How it would help her culture or his profits to stop by and side-walk him, Ernest could not see. All he could see was the ugly fact that there they were, an enemy within the gate, armed with javelins of spite, with which to prick his bubble.

With a forced smile of welcome, and a bad and black murder in his heart, Ernest marched in to inspect the applicants.

A mound of milk billowed toward him, his hand was given a high society shake and he heard a smiling Armin Wyncoop coo in his most persuasive accents.

"My dear Ernest, how very nice to see you."

"Welcome to Bingley Castle," said Ernest, automatically, using the phrase with which he had greeted the hunt guests.

"You remember Mrs. Phelps, of course," said Mrs. Wyncoop.

The long milk in the room greeted Ernest in a manner which a Des Moines Phelps, exuded a warm and unfeigned cordiality.

"I had the honor," Mrs. Phelps reminded him, "of awarding you a prize at our State Fair."

As Ernest recalled the scene, her conduct on that momentous occasion suggested that she considered it less an honor than a bore; for, during the ceremony, which was hardly longer than a pause for station identification—she had gazed languidly over his head at the stuffed quail tableau, and had tapped quail tracks into her small, superior mouth.

"Yes, yes, of course; I remember you," Mrs. Phelps, Ernest said. "Welcome to Bingley Castle."

"The mighty masculine hand of Otis Wyncoop closed on Ernest's."

"Well, you know, you old horse-thief, how's the kid?" boomed Mr. Wyncoop in a voice flavored with friendliness and drought.

"Fine, thanks," said Ernest. "Welcome to Bingley Castle."

"You know my sons," I think," said Mrs. Wyncoop, a bit superfluously Ernest thought, since she knew very well that he had known Mervin since he was a mottled and rather nasty baby.

"Hello, Mervin," said Ernest.

"Where pants you got on, Ernest?" said Mervin.

"Manners, dear, manners," said Mrs. Wyncoop, with a snarl of secret approval. "You must excuse him, Ernest. The trip has upset him. He's so high-strung and delicate, you know."

"I nint," said Mervin. "Got any mince pies in this dump?"

"No more pies today, dear," said his mother. "We've had too many already. I fear. Do sit down and be a good boy."

"Will you get me an air-gun?"

"Yes, dear, if you have nicely,"

Brbrel, Mervin slouched to a corner and began to lick a slab of buttercrust.

"I was so vexed interested in your exhibit of our native fauna, Mr. Ernest," said Mrs. Phelps. "You do better work than most professional taxidermists."

Ernest mumbled "Thanks" and was trying to assimilate her remark when she went on.

"A hobby is a great boon to one's character, as I often remark to Mr. Phelps before he was taken away. When he came home from his bank or his plow works, tired out, I used to let him see to it with his collection of bird's eggs. You must see them when next you are in Des Moines. They are in the Albertus T. Phelps Memorial Museum of Art."

"I'd love to see them," said Ernest. "And I should love to see your collection of lions, tigers and other big game. Armin has been telling me about some of your adventures in Africa."

Her dictation was clear. She was smiling on her lips. She holds her liquor remarkably well, thought Ernest.

"No, yes, Ernest," put in Armin Wyncoop, and she seemed a trifle flustered, "we happened to cross on the same boat as Mrs. Phelps. In the ship's newspaper we saw the story about how you were staying here with your cousins. When I told Ernest you were a great big fat frint and that I was sure you'd feel hurt if we passed through England without staying with you a few days, she—that is—"

"You need not be tactful, Armin," insisted Mrs. Phelps. "I was not, I confess, Mr. Ernest," she said, turning on Ernest a smile full of penitence and honey, "that when I heard Armin was going to visit at Bingley Castle, I just up and tagged along as the boys say."

"The glad you did," said Ernest, and as he fitted this piece of information into the jigsaw puzzle it began to make a definite pattern.

"No," continued Mrs. Phelps, "on an pilgrimage, a literary pilgrimage. I've promised to read papers to my little group back home on the Chaucer Country, Tennyson, and the Canadian literature."

She turned on Ernest a smile full of penitence and honey, "that when I heard Armin was going to visit at Bingley Castle, I just up and tagged along as the boys say."

"It's a pleasure to have you here," said Ernest.

"You're a very naughty boy, Ernest," said Mrs. Wyncoop, swinging a finger at him, "not to tell any of your old friends that you've come into a title."

"I haven't," said Ernest.

"Modesty, modesty," said Mrs. Wyncoop. "Being next in line to a dukedom is practically the same thing."

Cesar said, "People believe what they want to believe." Ernest bowed to Julius. He affirmed Mrs. Wyncoop's statement by not denying it. Technically, he told himself, he was in line for the title—though in the way a beggar who has just found a dime is in line to become a multimillionaire.

Though not equipped with television, Ernest could now see quite vividly the scene on the boat. Two bearded figures in alpine, deck-chairs—Mrs. Phelps took to the advances of the aspiring Mrs. Wyncoop—then the timely discovery of the wireless dispatch about Ernest in the ship's paper—and Mrs. Wyncoop's improvised fable about her intimacy with Ernest—of course, his dreadfully rich, my dear Mrs. Phelps, had very simple and unassuming. One would never think to look at him that he was a big game hunter, and heir to an dukedom—and then the fatal blow—"Naturally, Ernest will expect us to pay him a visit at his castle." He saw the deceiver of Des Moines thaw and begin her campaign to go to the castle, too—and he saw Armin, cornered, her bluff called, decide to brazen it out. It was a conspiracy, and they had made him part of it; but they had at the same time made themselves part of his.

The sound of music from the Great Hall came to their ears.

"Throwing a party, Ernest?" asked Otis G. Wyncoop.

"Why, yes—that is, the car is holding a Hand Ball," replied Ernest.

"Hot diggity!" exclaimed Mr. Wyncoop. "I feel like a party."

He saw Ernest's look of consternation, and went on.

"Oh, I won't go in these clothes. We got glad rags in our bags."

But it was not Mr. Wyncoop's costume that dismayed Ernest, dismayed though his suit of pea-soup green was. It was the thought that Mr. Wyncoop, no Chesterfield when sober, was tight now and certain to get better, and in his frothy state, he did not make a perfect playmate for dukes. His behavior, Ernest knew, tended toward the Pfaltzheim, his conversation became unrestrained (and ribald), and he was quite capable of upsetting Ernest's applecart.

"You're too tired for a party after your trip," asked Ernest, feebly hopeful.

"Fresh as daisies," returned Wyncoop. "Just show us our rooms, and in 20 minutes we'll be all dressed up like circus horses and ready to go to town."

Ernest found Crump and had a whispered conference with him.

"We'll have to put the young gentlemen in the you-know-room," the butler said.

"Fine," said Ernest. "Do so—and notify the ghost."

"Very good, sir. Are they staying long?"

"I'm afraid so," said Ernest.

Ernest wore his troubled brow to the Great Hall, sequestered the car, and said:

"Some people I knew at home have turned up, and I am wondering if you'll mind it."

"More the merrier," said the earl at once. "Friends of yours are friends of mine."

"That's very kind of you."

"Hair-cut!" retorted the earl. "Join me in a beaker of bubbly!"

"No thank you, your grace. I'm afraid I'm a bit of a teetotaler."

"No champagne, thank you," said Ernest.

"One less for you is one more for me," said the earl, and drank both glasses.

"I feel a rhumba coming on," he announced.

Ernest himself executed a rhumba with Lady Ross, and did not at all badly considering that he had learned it my mail.

Murdering Old Tunes

Real Music Lovers Resist Swing For Faded Songs

Robert Quillen, the newspaper paragrapher, gives it as his opinion that "swing music," the new dance measure, is really a primitive method of murdering horse thieves, but now used only to murder the old tunes.

There will be a lot of agreement with this view.

"Why, if anything isn't done early to swing the National Anthem," said the manager of a Detroit radio station. "Some things are all right for swing, but not the songs of our grand old country."

Turner Valley Oil Field

Drilling Is Being Hurried Along On More Than Thirty New Locations

Spring comes early to Turner Valley—the rolling foothills country of the Rockies, where a new oil development frontier is in the making.

Among the scores of giant derricks huge fiery gas flames, burning more than 200,000 cubic feet of waste gas a day, create an artificial warmth around the wells to bring Spring there in full bloom long before they appear on the farm and rangeland.

The giant flames, which soon may disappear, burn day and night, lighting a path of red across the sky that may be seen in Calgary, 45 miles to the west.

The plan is to have a conservation board to be appointed by the Alberta Government to save gas wastage.

To-day the south field, where the new boom towns of Little Calgary and Little New York are located, is attracting attention of oilmen.

When the first crude well roared in June, 1933, it marked a new south field, and today 40 crude production wells are in production, held down by a 42 per cent. production schedule, while producers wait to create greater markets for Alberta's oil.

The drilling continues day and night on new well locations. More than 300 rigs are in operation. New wells will be "spudded" as the Spring program of developments gets under way.

Turner Valley wells are "deep holes," many more than a mile in depth. Drilling costs range from $75,000 to $125,000 a well. To the East Texas and Oklahoma fields in the United States, a 7,000-foot well can be drilled for about $50,000.

Last year $10,000,000 was spent in the valley, it has been estimated. This year it may be greater.

A Good Definition

Negro Clergyman Was Sure About Meaning Of Eternity

A negro clergyman in one of his sermons, exclaimed to his hearers: "Eternity, you don't know the meaning of that word! It is for ever and ever, and five or six everlasting a-top of that. You might place a row of figures from here to the stars and add them all up and it wouldn't begin to tell how many ages long eternity is. Why, my friends, after millions and trillions of years had rolled away into Eternity, it would still be a hundred thousand years to breakfast time."

Faithful Architecture

"I like your fire hall," remarked the visitor. "Oh," replied the citizen with some embarrassment, "that's our church." The conversation, which might have taken place in any of a dozen towns, points to one of our conspicuous failings in the past. We have not realized that certain types of church are appropriate and that others are not, states The New Outlook.

New Zealand's Health And Superannuation Plan

The New Zealand government's long heralded national health and superannuation scheme has been outlined by Prime Minister Michael Savage.

The plan includes universal free medical and hospital services, maintenance payment for unemployed, increases in miners' widows', war veterans' and invalidity pensions and in family allowances; the institution of incapacity benefits and of orphan's pensions.

The present emergency unemployment wages tax of eight pence in the pound will be abolished and will be replaced by a social service charge of one shilling in the pound which the government will subsidize pound for pound. The proposed scheme will commence April 1, 1939.

Oil In Palestine

Will Be Likely Source Of Supply For British Empire

Development of Palestine's bituminous limestone deposits as a source of oil supply for the British Empire, in event of emergency is under consideration by a group of financiers in Jerusalem.

At least 200,000,000 tons of bituminous limestone are available in the lower Jordan hills, east of Jerusalem, and in the vicinity of Safad and Tarsus in Northern Palestine.

Experts estimate that, given an oil content of between 5 and 25 per cent, the deposits would be sufficient to satisfy Palestine's total oil demands for a century. At the same time they would become the nearest Empire source of supply for the United Kingdom and prove a safeguard if the oil pipelines from Iraq to the Mediterranean were put out of action.

Promising discoveries are reported to have been made near Gaza by the Iraq Petroleum Company, which has applied for extensive concessions in the area.

It Could Be Done

Why wouldn't it be a good idea for some long-headed and altruistic manufacturer, instead of marring the landscape with signposts, to have over a hundred or so sections of barren public highway, plant them with trees and shrubs, and maintain the planting? A modest sign would give him credit. Instead of billposts he would employ gardeners. Instead of ugliness he would create beauty for the weary roadside pilgrim—House & Garden.

Is Now Compulsory

Careful driving is compulsory in London. During the year ended November 30, 1937, 19,980 driving licences in London were issued for motoring offences, six people were disqualified from driving for life, and 2,099 were disqualified for periods.

Of these cases 15,548 were for excessive speed and 1,821 for careless driving.

There are few families left who are so far behind the times that they still enjoy the simple things of life.

Practically every farmer, who had not been on the land previously, commenced seeding Monday morning, and by the end of the week a large percentage of grain should be in the ground.

Weather conditions have not been ideal for work during the past week but the weather on Monday morning looked more favorable.

Gophers, that appeared in a large numbers early in the spring, have been cut down noticeably due to extensive poisoning.

Bluebirds, robins, meadow larks, and other species of birds are quite plentiful in spite of a cold spring. Prairie flowers predominate.

High winds prevented land work becoming general until later than usual however April 25 saw many outfits busy with the result that many acres are now seeded or at least cultivated.

Moisture conditions are excellent with sufficient surface moisture to assure good germi-mination and a subsoil moisture better than normal. Water is lying in sloughs and depressions.

Much soil drifting was in evidence during the high winds especially where summerfallow had been worked to any extent.

Farmers in south and east portion of district are delaying seeding with the hope of destroying the cutworms which are appearing in alarming quantities.

There have been frosts at night for the past week.
Gardens are being cultivated and some seeding done.

Big Demand For Paint Anticipated

Montreal: More painting will be done this spring in Western Canada than for many years past according to a nationwide reports from construction and building interests, leading interior decorators and Municipal authorities. This is largely due to a general feeling of optimism especially in the Prairie Provinces over crop prospects for the coming season. "Clean-Up, Paint-Up" week movements have also contributed considerably toward influencing people to brighten up their homes and properties.

One of our best known paint manufacturers is contributing to the "Clean-Up, Paint-Up" movement by offering their well known quality paints this spring at the lowest price in 20 years.

Last year's vogue for satin finishes, introduced by Sherwin-Williams with their new Semi-Lustre washable satin enamel, bids fare to continue. It has figured prominently in the decoration of "Home and Garden's" Model Home, "Woman's"
Home a Companion" Mystery
House, and other famous model homes.

As an added incentive this spring to "Paint Up and Beautify the Home".

Farmer's Hardware are putting on a special sale of a wide range of Sherwin-Williams paint products, offering a real saving in cash at a time when people are ready to do their painting.

Do You Know?

That the average annual production of so called dairy cows in Alberta is about 4000 pounds of milk? And do you know that about twice this amount is required before the cow can be considered a really profitable producer. Experiments have shown that improved production is based on proper breeding and feeding methods. Information on these points is available at the Lethbridge Experimental Station.

A heavy shower of rain fell over the district on Wednesday afternoon with .11 moisture registered in town. Later in the day a heavy shower fell in the eastern portion of the district and one farmer was forced to use his engine in order to get his car out of the field.
Lightning, thunder and hail accompanied the afternoon shower.

Much optimism is felt over the recent showers as this year clouds seem to have a meaning, whereas last year they merely passed over. Only a small portion of seeding is completed.
Cutworms have been causing a fear in the district east.

TESTED RECIPES

SPRINGTIME FOODS

With the approach of spring comes yearning for lighter foods, and everyone welcomes a change from the more or less heavy meals which are served during the winter months. It is natural that each new food such as asparagus, rhubarb and asparagus, which appears on the market as spring vegetables, is heralded with delight, and that other foods which suit the springtime taste are in popular demand.

The following recipes suggest a few of the many foods which seem to be rightly associated with warm, spring days, and should prove effective in whetting lagging appetites.

- * JELLIED HAM ROLLS
- 6 slices cooked ham
- 1 small bar white cream cheese or
- 1 cup cottage cheese
- Green to moisten
- 1 cup horseradish
- 1 package lemon jelly powder
- 12 cups boiling water
- 4 cup vinegar
- 4 teaspoon salt
- Dash of cayenne

Make a paste of cheese, cream and horseradish. Spread generously on thin slices of ham. Roll tightly. Arrange rolls in mould. Dissolve the jelly powder in boiling water to which vinegar, salt and cayenne have been added.
Cool. Pour over the ham rolls and chill. When thoroughly set, cut into oblong shapes with one ham roll in each. Serve on crisp lettuce. If desired one-half cup seedless raisins may be added to the jelly mixture when partly set.

Following is the moisture for the district as recorded by the Service Grain Co.

Long time average	475.
